Title (DocumentCloud) Abstract The reproducibility of reproducibility is established by R.The online application of the DataCamp Analytics Suite uses a subscription key which is issued by DataCamp.id authentication mode and the query identifier are provided to check the uniqueness of the query in the application.So the uniqueness of a query identifier in the application is not the exact match between the.xlsx to the replicated.xlsx with the applied query.Collection not found: /Content/Front/fonts/.online sql server access can be generated easily by this kind of application. The auth id and the auth code may be stored in the session and retrieved. For example, for a column in the data source or a condition to exclude certain data rows, a list of queries to use can be provided, and the list of queries is used.Checking the uniqueness of a query identifier in the application is an import part of the online application of DataCamp Analytics Suite (DataCamp) which is to set the authentication model and check the uniqueness of a query identifier in the application.DataCamp supports five kinds of authentication mode: (1) one-time or session-based authentication (2) multi-user authentication (3) password authentication (4) authentication by the third party (5) no authentication. A session-based authentication is the default authentication.In the DataCamp Analytics Suite we use this mode for a live session with at least one query.A logic to check the uniqueness of the query identifier in the application is divided into two stages: (1) authentication model checking and (2) query identifier uniqueness checking.1.Authentication model checking.Authentication model checking and the session-based authentication are used for one-time or session-based authentication.Session-based authentication is the authentication mode to check the uniqueness of a query identifier in the application.Session-based authentication requires the authid and the authcode to be given to check the uniqueness of the query identifier in the application.Authid is a randomly generated code and authcode is the randomly generated code which is used by a session.The session ID, which is generated by the AuthSession function is checked to see if it is a valid ID or not.AuthSession generates a new session ID and a new authid.If the authid is not in the session, the authid is saved in the session.If the authcode is not in the session, the authcode is saved in the session.Authorized session is
